Dear Earl:

After consultation with Dudley Lynch, the managing editor of our CA Book Views, it was decided that your review could be "beefed up." Would you have any time to be more specific about how this book can help our readers? I have read the book myself and gained a great deal from it and would like to see the book recommended to our readers. I also believe that you are the man to do it if you could talk in terms of some of the people whom you know have been helped by it and why they have been helped by it. If you could speak to how this book aids the guilt-ridden, those who are always negative, and those who are self-deprecating, it would be more helpful.

Inam returning a copy of the review as I originally edited it. If you could expand the paragraphs you have here, it would be helpful. Don't give us more than two pages double-spaced, but deal with some of the specific reasons why this book needs to be read by our readers.

I appreciate your serving on the Review Board. I believe you have something to say that no one else on our Board has to say. Your unique experience is the kind that I want to see shared with all our readers. Your willingness to do some more work on this review is deeply appreciated, especially in view of the demanding schedule I know you keep.

Fraternally yours,

John Allen Chalk
